SUCCESS ON THE GOLF COURSE MADE BOBBY JONES FAMOUS, but his gift for friendship, his integrity, and the leadership he exhibited were what had a lasting effect on those who knew him. Today, those qualities are represented in three signature programs that honor and perpetuate his legacy while raising the bar in the areas of ethics, scholarship, and research.

THE JONES PROGRAM IN ETHICS helps prepare graduate students to be responsible intellectual leaders. During his lifetime, Jones was known for respecting the rules and acting with conviction, both on and off the course. This steadfast dedication to integrity inspired the creation of the Jones Program in Ethics at Emory’s Laney Graduate School. Mandatory for all doctoral students, the program provides a cross-disciplinary introduction to ethics for research, teaching, and professional life.

JONES BIOMEDICAL ENGINEERING FELLOWSHIPS create opportunities for advancement in patient care and the discovery of cures. Through a unique collaboration between Emory University and Georgia Institute of Technology, the Jones Biomedical Engineering Fellows are conducting groundbreaking research and leading the fight against debilitating diseases like Parkinson’s disease, Alzheimer’s disease, cancer, and syringomyelia, the rare neurological condition Jones suffered from at the end of his life.

THE ROBERT T. JONES, JR. SCHOLARSHIPS AND FELLOWSHIPS provide a unique opportunity for students to experience the academic benefits of a major research university while having their time on campus shaped through the lens of an international student. The Robert T. Jones, Jr. Scholarship and Fellowship programs connect two universities in Atlanta—Emory University, where Jones attended law school, and Georgia Institute of Technology, where he earned a bachelor’s degree in mechanical engineering—with the University of St Andrews in Scotland, home of the Old Course and the people who adopted him as their own.

SUPPORT THE JONES PROGRAM

From intellectual and cultural exchanges between world-renowned centers of scholarship and learning, to support of doctoral students whose research and discoveries will change the way that we prevent, detect, and treat illness and disease, an investment in the Robert T. Jones, Jr. Program at Emory is invaluable. We are grateful for the generous donations of alumni, friends, and benefactors who make this innovative program possible.
